ARF Board 2016-17-----32

From the President

It seems as though we educators never get away from a school calendar. Your Board is no exception. We closed the 2015-2016 year with a meeting welcoming the following new members: Jim Melton, Secretary; Freddie Groomes-McLendon and Genevieve Scott, Scholarship; Mary Ann and Ron Braswell and Sue Hall, Friendship. The office of Vice President has been changed to President Elect and National Liaison AROHE, and is held by Walter Moore. Fancy Funk remains on the Board as a National Officer of AROHE, The Association of Retirement Organizations in Higher Education. Following the meeting both old and new members were entertained with a lovely reception hosted by outgoing President Carol Darling.

Two weeks later was the Heritage Window Presentation in the Heritage Museum, Dodd Hall. This beautiful stained glass window honors all FSU faculty, staff and administrators, and was made possible by generous donations of ARF members.

President Elect Walter Moore has been busy planning for a great Fall Kickoff. Our fall luncheon will be Tuesday, October 4, at the Alumni Center Ballroom, beginning at 11:00. The social hour will be sponsored by Edward Jones, and the program is one that will be of interest to us all, "Financial Fraud."

A continued goal that we have for this year is to raise the funding for the Bernard and Greta Sliger Scholarship. When endowed this scholarship will be awarded to high quality students within the Presidential Scholar Award Program. Since Dr. Sliger was the President who established FSU's Association of Retired Faculty, let's work to get this done to honor him.

Did you know that ARF has an office space in the Kellogg Building, 3rd floor, which can be used by retired faculty who could benefit from having an office on campus? You may request the use of this space. This space is available for one year with continued use based on availability. If you already have other office space on campus, please indicate this in your request. Priority will be given to ARF members who do not already have campus office space. Send your request to bjoanos17@comcast.net. In applying state your purpose for making the request.

In early December, President and Mrs. Thrasher are hosting us for a lovely holiday evening at the President's house. This event will be shared with the Faculty Senate and will be a great time to visit with colleagues.

If you have not participated in the delightful tours of campus scheduled in February, you are missing a real treat. Special Advisor Max Carraway has planned three informative tours that you will not want to miss, so sign up early for a reserved seat!

In March, President Elect Walter Moore has planned for the Annual Barbeque at the Seminole Reservation. This will be a special Sonny's lunch attended by brilliant student scholars who will inspire us all.

Before we know it, the May luncheon will be planned and this coming school year will come to a close. I ask for your involvement in this special Association and ask that you tell other FSU retirees what good things that we are doing. You will find the form to use for your fall luncheon reservation and for paying your dues on the back page of this journal. Don't delay, sign up!

I look forward to seeing you in October, if not before.

Fall Luncheon
FSU ALUMNI Center
Ballroom
Tuesday
October 4, 2016

Elder Financial Fraud is a topic that should get the attention of every member of the Association of Retired Faculty. It will be the topic of the program for our fall luncheon. The FSU College of Criminology and Criminal Justice, along with Merrill Lynch, have recently completed an in-depth exploratory study of the riskfactors, protective factors, incidence, and circumstances of elder financial exploitation in one of the largest retirement communities in the United States.

Retiree Journal 3

Presenting the results of this study will be Thomas G. Blomberg, Dean and Sheldon L. Messinger Professor of Criminology in the College of Criminology and Criminal Justice; and Julie Mestre Brancale, a doctoral candidate in the College of Criminology and Criminal Justice, who is currently writing her dissertation on elder financial fraud. Join us to hear their presentation: "Elder Financial Fraud in a Large Florida Retirement Community."

As usual, there will be a social hour beginning at 11:00 a.m., generously sponsored by Kelly Kitchens of Edward Jones, whose office is located at 2937 Kerry Forest Parkway, Suite A-1. Lunch will be served at noon.

This issue of Retiree News includes a Dues and Meal Reservation form. PLEASE MAKE YOUR RESERVATION BY SEPTEMBER 27, 2016. The cost for the luncheon will be $22.00. If you have special dietary needs—vegetarian, gluten-free, for example—please let us know on your reservation.

Thanks to Matthew Inman of Transportation & Parking Services for agreeing again to register our vehicles for on-campus parking privileges at the luncheon. If you want to register for on-campus parking, be sure to bring your FSU Retiree Card, $10.00 in cash or check, and the following information for each vehicle you wish to register: make, model, year, color, and license plate.

Finally, thanks to this year's sterling program committee: Larry Gerber, Sherrill Ragans, and Anne Rowe.

I look forward to seeing you at the luncheon.

Walter Moore, President Elect

Membership News

The members of the Florida State University Association of Retired Faculty and Staff extend a cordial invitation to you to join our organization. Retirement is our time to keep learning and growing. ARF has a simple method for you to stay dynamic and connected to your friends and colleagues at FSU – join us!

Those eligible for membership include any faculty member and administrative staff member of the Florida State University and its direct support organization who is retired. Spouses of members and of deceased members are included in this eligibility. Current members of ARF, I ask you to encourage your friends that are not members of ARF to join today. If you have recommendations, please contact me and I will be happy to follow up and make contact if you wish.

Membership is only $10 per year. If you join the year you retire, membership is free. Affiliation with ARF offers at least three opportunities a year to keep connections to FSU associates open and vital. At our fall and spring luncheons we gather to initiate conversations with new friends or renew discussions with old friends.

Each luncheon also features a stimulating speaker or entertainment from FSU. In December we gather to meet at the President's House for a Holiday Gathering with friends from across the University. Those of us who have been with ARF for some time have found these activities to be fun and rewarding.

Embrace and enjoy ARF's new vitality! Join or renew your membership now, in time for our Fall Luncheon (October 4). Dean Tom Blomberg of Criminology will bring graduate students to talk about a major Criminology project on retiree fraud. Please see information about payment of dues and/or the luncheon in this edition of the ARF Retiree Journal.

Students Extraordinaire

President-Elect, Betty Lou Joanos introduced the program. For the past several years ARF has invited undergraduate scholars and graduate scholars to attend the Barbeque as our guests.

This year we had the Sliger Presidential Scholarship recipient, another outstanding Presidential Scholar, and two students from the Graduate Fellows Society.

The attendees at the ARF Barbecue were thrilled to meet four amazing students that were brought by Karen Laughlin, Dean of Undergraduate Studies and Lisa Liseno, Assistant Dean of the Graduate School. After being introduced by their respective deans, each student made a brief statement about their time at FSU and what they have accomplished. Many of our ARF members commented on how impressed they were with these students.

The undergraduate students were part of the Presidential Scholars Program, which invests in undergraduate students with extraordinary potential to be the transformational leaders of their generation. The award is the premier undergraduate merit scholarship at Florida State University. It provides four years of support and is open to high school seniors who are admitted into the Florida State University Honors Program. The Presidential Scholars form a community of critical and innovative thinkers who are using their talents to make meaningful contributions to society. The program is highly competitive, open to all disciplines, and provides access to the best Florida State University has to offer our students.

Natalie Jones

Karen Laughlin, Dean of Undergraduate Studies

Brian Austin Westergom

Lisa Liseno, Assistant Dean of the Graduate School

The students accompanying Dean Laughlin were Natalie Jones, who has a triple major in Biology, Art History, and Japanese and is from Tallahassee Florida and Brian Austin Westergom (who goes by Austin), an Economics major from Sebring Florida. It should be noted that Austin is the recipient of the Sliger Presidential Scholarship. It was awarded to Austin for 2015-2016, and helped him realize his dream of studying abroad in London with FSU's International Programs. We have put a hold on awarding any further Sliger Scholarships until we have increased the base of that fund to reach endowment level. So, please keep sending in your contributions for the Sliger Presidential Scholarship Award.

Jolie Frketic

The Fellows Society is Florida State University's graduate fellowship society that brings together the university's outstanding graduate students who hold competitive university-wide and prestigious external fellowships for the purpose of interdisciplinary discourse. The mission of the Fellows Society is to recognize and advance academic excellence at the graduate level by developing leadership skills, promoting interactions among fellows from multiple disciplines, encouraging service to the university and community, and developing an interdisciplinary network of scholars. Activities include monthly research sharing sessions, an annual President's Social, the spring Fellows Forum, and a fall induction ceremony and networking session.

Spence Purnell

The two graduate students who accompanied Assistant Dean Liseno to the reception included Jolie Frketic who as a doctoral student in Industrial Engineering from Mt. Dora Florida holds the Adelaide Wilson Fellowship. Spence Purnell is a master's student in Public Administration from Bradenton, Florida and holds the Gubernatorial Fellowship.

It was very exciting to hear from these students and hope that ARF members can attend the barbecue next year to hear from four more students. It is great to see their enthusiasm and commitment to their academic programs and Florida State University.

Stained Glass Window Dedication

The Association of Retired Faculty stained-glass window in the Heritage Museum commemorates FSU's current and retired faculty, staff, and administrators.

The Association of Retired Faculty at Florida State University presented a stained-glass window commemorating the dedication of the institution's current and retired faculty, staff and administrators during a ceremony June 6. The window, which is installed in the university's Heritage Museum in Dodd Hall, depicts figures representing a diversity of academic disciplines, gender, race and age.

Beautiful music for the Reception

The idea for the window came from the late Fred Standley, a retired English professor who served as president of the Association of Retired Faculty in 2007-2008.

“Fred was known as a champion of faculty governance, for advancing women and minorities and for his generous treatment of all people,” said Carol Darling, the Association's Past President and a retired professor of family and child sciences.

Standley chaired the association's original committee that was tasked with developing the idea into a reality by working with artists from the university's Master Craftsman Studio. That committee consisted of Max Carraway, Marie Cowart, Tonya Harris, Michael Launer, Anne Rowe and Nancy Turner.

“He retired at age 70 and said he was going to miss teaching but was going to be so happy to give up committee work. And what’s the first thing he did? Joined the Association of Retired Faculty,” Jayne Standley said.

“After Fred’s death a year and a half ago, we carried on with the original committee’s vision of a window that represented our organization in its acknowledgement of faculty, staff and administrators,” said Carol Darling, the Association’s Past President.

Darling thanked the Master Craftsman Studio artisans who created the window: Juan Comas, Karen Pritzl and Sarah Coakley, the studio’s public relations director and glass artist. She also thanked the members of the association who contributed money to pay for the window.

During the ceremony, Rowe, a retired English professor and former dean of the faculties, read the window’s inscription plaque: “Gift of the Association of Retired Faculty: A tribute envisioned by and, in large part, brought to fruition by Professor Fred L. Standley.”

“We discussed many times that Florida State is a unique and wonderful educational opportunity for our young people, and it’s the people of FSU that are so committed to ensuring that each one has a quality educational experience,” she said.

The association’s window is one of 35 stained-glass windows that commemorate various people, clubs and milestones from the institution’s history.

Each window was designed and created by the Master Craftsman Studio, a unique auxiliary of the university’s Facilities Department. The studio serves numerous campus departments, creating a wide range of artistic objects that beautify the Florida State campus. FSU students who work for the studio have opportunities to hone their artistic crafts while learning the business of running a professional art studio.

Survey: Providing Critical Data on Emeriti Value

The latest report of UC emeriti activity from all UC campuses again proves to be an effective tool in documenting the continuing value of emeriti to their campus, the UC system and the state of California.

The Council of University of California Emeriti Associations (CUCEA), an organization composed of representatives from the Emeriti Associations of its older nine UC campuses has, as one of its primary goals, fostering supportive relations not only among its member associations, but also among all levels of the University's governance to benefit the teaching, research and service missions of the University of California.

As well, 537 UC emeriti reported that they had been selected for an honor, award or other recognition, with 197 receiving honors in the category of "lifetime achievement;" and 42 were awarded the status of Fellow by their colleagues in academic and professional societies. Many in the creative arts had taken part in musical performances, most on multiple occasions, while others were involved in theater arts or completed fiction, poetry, or biographical projects. Within the Health Sciences, 52% of respondents indicated that they had maintained their licenses to practice and 29% were still doing clinical work. Perhaps of even greater importance is the fact that more than 700 participants had been involved as mentors to UC students.

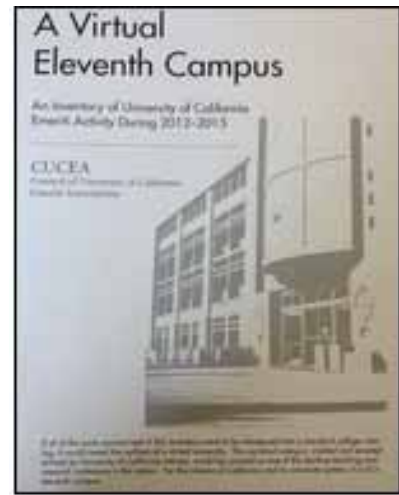

These findings are compelling. All of their accomplishments act as independent validations of the claims the UC makes about the excellence of its faculty. They illustrate that for hundreds of UC emeriti, in spite of formal retirement, their work and dedication to scholarship, their campus and productivity continues. Perhaps the most remarkable finding is that hundreds of UC emeriti remain engaged in their research and writing even 15-20 years after retirement.

AROHE would like to suggest that obtaining and documenting the accomplishments of their emeriti and retirees should help all colleges and universities to understand the importance of continuing the engagement, services and support of this population.

Reminder: Dates for the AROHE 2016 Biennial Conference , hosted by the University of Washington Retirees Association, Seattle: August 14-16.
